

Health Equity Community of Practice

The Rutgers Institute for Corporate Social Innovation (RICSI) defines Health Equity as the state in which everyone has a fair and just opportunity to attain their highest level of health, regardless of location, gender, race or socioeconomic status.

The new RICS Health Equity Community of Practice provides collaborative opportunities – both in person and virtually – where individuals and organizations from every sector share insights, communicate about successes and learn from failures.

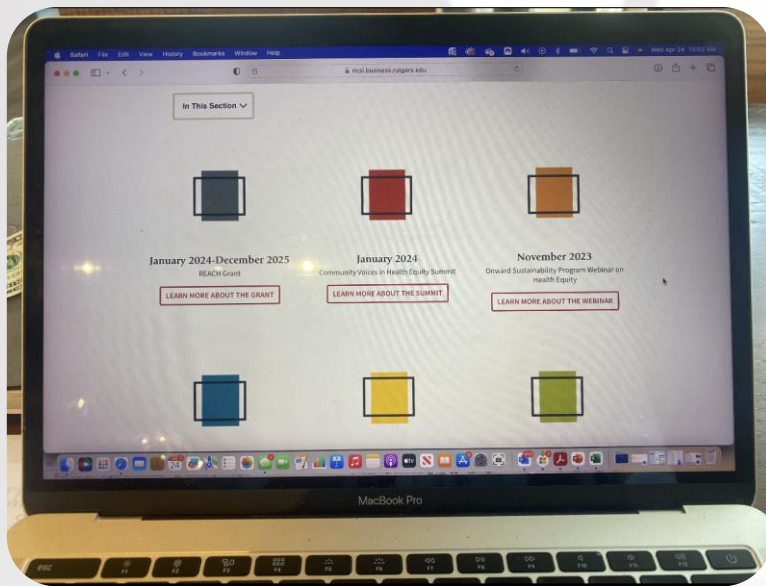

Our goal is to build mutual understanding and make a tangible social impact toward reducing longstanding and seemingly intractable disparities in healthcare access and health outcomes.

Using principles of systems thinking, transformational leadership, critical inquiry and reflection our aim is to create a comprehensive resource hub leading to breakthroughs in how we address the systemic challenges associated with health inequities.

Health Equity Community of Practice

Our Community of Practice offers multiple opportunities for engagement:

- Sharing a Best Practice or Success Story
- Collaborating on Research
- Joining a Roundtable Discussion or Series
- Becoming a Corporate Partner
- Sponsoring a Webinar/Webinar Series
- Speaking at a RICS Symposium
- Contributing an Article or Blog Post
- Participating in Networking Opportunities

This Community of Practice is for individuals, academic institutions/centers, corporations, and foundations who share the goal of promoting Health Equity for all.

Some of our work is available to read on our website at <https://ricsi.business.Rutgers.edu/health-equity>.

Please contact Jeana Wirtenberg, Ph.D., at jwirtenberg@business.rutgers.edu to learn more about our Health Equity Community of Practice.